

REFLECTIVE BELIEVING AND INTERFAITH DIALOGUE

IAMSR PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT
WORKSHOP

WORKSHOP LEARNING

- We will learn how reflective believing can be carried out within a spiritually and religiously pluralist research community in management and organization studies.
- You will receive support and methods for integrating spiritual and religious faith into their research.
- We also may meet other researchers with whom to pursue dialogical research focused on a topic of mutual interest.

SCIENTIFIC METHOD

REFLECTIVE BELIEVING

REFLECTIVE BELIEVING

REFLECTIVE BELIEVING: PRACTICE

1. Choose a management or organizational setting of interest to you.
  - From your faith perspective, what is at stake in this setting?
  - What are the possibilities for renewing practice?
2. How would you frame the topic theoretically?
  - How does your faith inform your framing?
3. How could you study the topic empirically?
  - How can you bring your faith into the method and analysis?

INTERFAITH DIALOGUE

INTERFAITH DIALOGUE: PRACTICE

Presenter

Share the management or organizational setting of interest to you.

- What does your faith help you to see in this setting?
- How does your faith open possibilities for renewing practice?

Listener

What new insights does the presenter's faith perspective offer?

How might your own faith contribute to the presenter's topic?

ARTICLES

- Miller, K. D. 2015. “Organizational Research as Practical Theology.” Organizational Research Methods, 18(2): 276-299.
- Miller, K. D. Forthcoming. “Interfaith Dialogue in a Secular Field.” Management Research Review.